About Routledge Area Studies

Routledge publishes an industry leading programme in Area Studies and is the journal publishing partner for many of the world's foremost learned societies and associations in Area Studies, specialising in everything from African Studies to Russian & Eastern European Studies.

Routledge has a long and distinguished history dating back to 1836, and established its academic credentials in the 20th century when, under Routledge and Kegan Paul, so many of the key thinkers of the time were published: Michel Foucault, Jean Piaget, Emile Durkheim, Jerome Bruner and many more. Routledge remains the key publisher for those who, through their scholarship, seek to influence the course of academic thought in area studies. We work with some of the world's leading researchers and are proud to support a truly international community of scholars, researchers, authors and editors. Routledge-published journals figure significantly in the Social Science Citation Index®: in the 2010 JCR over 30% of the Area Studies journals receiving Impact Factors were from the Routledge list. Routledge offers a range of unrivalled services and products which seek to maximise the reach and impact of published research.
